

Up to 25% of existing smoke alarms are not working due to dead or missing batteries.

Defender's long-life lithium batteries are encased, or sealed, into the body of the detector, and are non-removable.

The sealed batteries should not require replacement over the life of the detector, and cannot be pilfered for use in another device.